eLoptico

Developer (m/f)

About eLoptico:

Initiated by BIH entrepreneurs, an international, well-funded startup eLoptico is introducing "Technology driven wearables" in the dental industry. We're currently working on the latest innovation in the dental industry, unfortunately we can't reveal too many details :). We are experimenting with the following hardware: ODG Glass, Google Glass and Oculus VR. Our cutting edge mix in industry, technology, hardware and business provides a unique concept. Our goal is to actively take the global leadership within the head-wearable area of the dentists industry and lift the industry baseline to a revolutionary level.

We are venture-backed by seed investors from BIH, DK and US and are growing rapidly. Our next goal is to extend MVP in the coming 12 months and raise additional capital to accelerate our global reach. Our next stop is San Francisco where we are extensively in dialog with the dental industry and investors. We are targeting POC rollout in the summer of 2015.

Our culture:

Our team is assembled of professional, sharp, enthusiastic and creative individuals who constantly seek out new challenges. We all come from IT, having funded successful startups, built award-winning companies, sold successful startups and are currently innovating the dental industry. Our passion is software development and creativity. We know how to build and scale technology companies, and we want your help!

You can find us working tirelessly to build the next innovative and a groundbreaking company, called eLoptico. We are developers with a "do whatever it takes" mentality, and we're building out our core team who will provide the foundation on which eLoptico success will be built on.

Who we're looking for:

You're triggered to lead a team of professional developers, with a can-do mentality. You are a team player who hates conflicts and have the ambition to build out an amazing product for the medical industry. You take pride in doing things the "best" way and you're willing to build and mentor a talented development team. You' re excited to play a key role in product development and you're eager to work closely with product and a beta-user community. You feel and preach: "Good is not enough!"

What you'll do:

- Further develop MVP into a global full scale product.
- Together with MGT establish engineering planning to achieve business goals.
- Identifying and prioritizing product roadmap, development activities, timetables, implementation and deployment of product.
- Work with the Product team to set goals which you'll lead to delivery dates.
- Recruit, hire and motivate high end engineers.

- Together with your team members develop the product.
- Lead our team of developers from 3+ and grow our engineering team to 10+.

Your Skills:

- Android, Java, Angular development skills.
- Excellent communication skills.
- Team player and motivator.
- Have worked in small but growing companies.
- Aware of the technical landscape and able to engage in debates on architecture of scalable web and mobile systems.
- 5+ years of hands-on experience, ideally with technologies such as Mobile Development, Android, Java, NodeJS, Mongo, AWS.
- Experience building mobile apps and consumer facing software.
- Experience in Agile development methodology such as Scrum and agile development tools similar to Jira.
- Prior startup experience.
- Preacher of Lean development methodology.
- Excellence!
